

Ecosystem too precious to lose

THE Enterprise Mine lease on North Stradbroke Island should not be renewed. The mine is in a beautiful pristine area of high dunes. These dunes are composed of layers of sand and vegetation laid down 300,000 years ago which have evolved into a system of complex soil types and water tables that sustain varied ecosystems with diverse flora and fauna. They are unique and can never be replicated by post-mining rehabilitation.

Enough is enough. Mining should stop immediately.
